SOLOMON'S WISDOM

King Solomon, King David's second son born to Bathsheba was known as the wisest man in the world. He was chosen by his father to be king even over his older brothers and he built the temple and many other buildings in Jerusalem. He had great material wealth which led to his fall along with over 1000 wives.

But this story your about to read tells of his great wisdom in judging a matter between what the Bible says are two harlots. I myself stand amazed knowing I could never think of such a wise test.

One woman began by explaining that the two women lived together in the same house and that she had been delivered of a child in the house. On the third day after the woman had been delivered, the other lady had also been delivered of a child. There wasn't anyone in the house but these two ladies.

The first woman also stated that the second woman's child had died because she had slept on top of it, and she arose and took the first woman's son from beside her while she slept, and she laid the live baby in bed with her, and placed the dead baby with the first woman. The first woman also stated that when she awoke that the baby was dead, and looking further she saw that the baby was not her son.

But the other woman said, No, that her son was the living son and that the other woman's son was the dead son. But the other woman said, No, but the dead son is your son and that the living son is my son.

Solomon said that one says my son is living and your son is dead, and the other says that your son is dead and my son is living. So Solomon called for a sword and said to cut the child in two and give half to each.

Then one woman said to please don't divide it, but give the child to the other woman, but the other woman said to divide it so that no one would get the child. Then Solomon said to give the child to the one willing to give it away and not to slay it, because she was the real mother. When all of Israel hear of the king's judgement, they feared Solomon for God's wisdom was on him to judge.
